

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

arguments of its lawyers are not of the importance or interest that they have been.

But as portraits of men who from small beginnings and with few advantages worked themselves up into commanding position among their cotemporaries, they are interesting, and it cannot be gainsaid that the lawyers whose labors are here described were men who fearlessly, faithfully and with signal ability discharged the duties which they were called on to perform.

The printing, paper and binding are unexceptionable, as is usually the case with work from the Riverside Press.

Manchester, N. H.

G. W.

---

THE ANNUAL OF THE LAW OF REAL PROPERTY. Edited by TILGHMAN E. BALLARD and EMERSON E. BALLARD. Vol. 2.
Crawfordville, Ind.: The Ballard Publishing Co. 1893.

Legal literature has reached the point where compendiums of particular branches of the law, if well done, have an assured place. The second volume of the Messrs. BALLARD's work brings the law of Real Property down to the present year, continuing from Volume I begun a year earlier. As we said, in reviewing the first volume, the only true test of the success of such a production is the demand for it, and there is every evidence that this one has already met with that success.

Volume II contains a smaller number of cases reported in full than the previous volume. It is to our mind a mistake to insert the full report of any cases. The real use of a work of this kind is to direct the practitioner to the authorities for which he is in search, not to reproduce those authorities. It is upon the reports themselves that a lawyer must ultimately rely. The province of compendiums is to guide him by a short cut to his goal. The Ballard Annual does this far better than any mere digest can do, for on account of its elaborate arrangement and index, and especially the fact that something more than dry and insufficient syllabi are given, a far more correct estimate is given of the importance of the original cases, and whether or not they are applicable to the point being studied.

W. S. E.